

Types of construction

Agricultural

Typically economical buildings, and other improvements, for agricultural purposes. Examples include barns, equipment and animal sheds, specialized fencing, storage silos and elevators, and water supply and drains such as wells, tanks, and ditches

Residential

Residential construction includes houses, apartments, townhouses, and other smaller, low-rise housing types

Commercial

This refers to construction for the needs of private commerce, trade, and services. Examples include office buildings, shopping centers and malls, warehouses, banks, theaters, and larger residential structures such as high-rise hotels and condominiums