

- As reported by broadcaster ABC, it should be cylindrical inflatable structure which will support in an upright position due to the continuous injection of air under high pressure. American patent for a non-trivial idea - "space elevator" height of 20 kilometers - the company has received That Technology. In the US, That Technology received a patent for a "space elevator." The information is provided ABC. According to the channel, the company will make a cylindrical shaped inflatable structure