

People will never forget the terrible effects of the bloodshed during the First World War. Memorials all around the world will remind us of it.

