

Properties of Genetic Code

8. Gene-polypeptide Parity:

A specific gene transcribes a specific mRNA that produces a specific polypeptide. On this basis, a cell can have only as many types of polypeptides as it has types of genes. However, this does not apply to certain viruses which have overlapping genes.

