

INSIGHT #5

You can't build a great company without great leadership. Famed venture capitalist, Vinod Khosla bets on CEOs with bold visions:

“It's not about people who have focus groups to determine products - which reduces everything to mediocrity...” he said “...It's not about consensus or common opinions. Steve jobs famously ignored consensus advice. The development of really new product concepts is done by vision, not by process. It's about vision, passion, and the courage of convictions.”