

When raising capital, it's wise to focus on a few early investors, and add others once as the initial group opts out. During your first discussion, tailor your presentation to answer these three questions:

Are you and your team passionate and unrelenting in your commitment to the vision?