

The FCC wants the new minimum broadband speed to encourage providers to increase their Internet speed options.