

When Do You Need a Statechart?

- During its execution, a program performs operations in response to the external or internal events and conditions
- Sometimes, this event and time ordering of operations is so pervasive that we can best formally characterize the behavior of such programs in terms of a statechart

David Harel